Dear Maud,

Congratulations on your achievement

It is with great delight that I write to commend you on your success as one of the teaching staff of ARC4001 - Advanced architecture project 1 at the Caulfield campus in Semester 1, 2017.

By achieving an overall satisfaction score of 4.70 out of five, your unit has been recognised not only as one of the top 7.2% of all Monash units conducted during Semester 1, 2017, but also one that your students consider to be outstanding.

Your enviable result reflects your commitment to excellence and is a clear demonstration of the effort, creativity and skills applied to ensure your students were immersed in a learning experience filled with opportunity, creativity and discovery.

Through the education priorities identified in our strategic plan Focus Monash 2015-2020, we are all engaged in a transformational agenda that will ultimately see Monash become as recognised for its education excellence, as it is for its excellent research.

I encourage you to share examples of your teaching practice either through opportunities offered by your school and faculty, or by the Monash University Office of Learning and Teaching or the Monash Education Academy.

By sharing your skills, approaches, and experience, you will be making an invaluable contribution to the development of Monash curricula that is both outward looking and learner-centred by design and provides each student with an outstanding learning experience.

On behalf of the Monash community I thank you for your dedication to learning and teaching and congratulate you once again on this exceptional achievement.

Yours sincerely,

Professor Susan Elliott
Deputy Vice-Chancellor and Vice-President (Education)
