Sent on behalf of Professor James Whisstock, Deputy Dean Research

Dear Melinda,

I am pleased to inform you that your publication, Development of an Evidence-Informed and Codesigned Model of Support for Children of Parents With a Mental Illness— “It Takes a Village” Approach, has been selected for the FMNHS Early Career Researcher Publication Prize 2023 (EPP 2023) for the Leon Piterman Prize for Social and Educational Research. A copy of the comments from the reviewers who assessed your application is attached.

As part of the Prize, you will receive $1000* and a printed certificate signed by the Deputy Dean Research. Professor James Whisstock will present your award during the closing remarks at the 2023 ECR Symposium on Wednesday 1 November 2023 at the Victorian Heart Hospital.

 Prize winning funds for use by the ECR in research-related activities such as conference registration and/or accommodation/travel expenses, will be transferred to the recipient's nominated cost centre and fund number details as soon as these are provided to the Faculty Research Office (medicine.research@monash.edu).*

The Faculty Research Office (FRO) will publish the names of all award recipients, including details of their publication on the ECR Information Gateway in late August. This information will be published in the Faculty newsletter, The Pulse at the same time.

We will contact you soon in a separate email to provide further details of the Award Ceremony, request some publicity details and a portrait photograph for use on the ECR Information Gateway.

 Note: The FRO will aim to publish the successful outcomes for the ECR Publication Prize 2023 in The Pulse newsletter by no later than Tuesday 5 September. The exact date will depend on when the FRO receives all publicity details.*

The FRO requests that you refrain from any other publicity of your award (School / Department newsletters, blogs, social media, etc.) until after publication in The Pulse newsletter.

Please contact your School ECR Coordinator or your School Research Manager if you would like to find out whether there is an opportunity for you to give a short presentation on your award winning publication as part of your regular School/Department seminar program.

Congratulations and best wishes for your research.

Kind regards,

Professor James Whisstock
